

Equinox was born out of the collision of my passion for literature and the fact that there simply aren't enough digital literary magazines based in India.

Our team now consists of around thirty artists/designers, writers, editors, and PR specialists. The staff team writes articles spanning several topics, and we've featured submissions from all across the world.

We organised a Poetry Challenge (where we shared over 200 poems on our website), spoke at two webinars, collaborated with other magazines and foundations, and released two full-length issues. I was interviewed by The New Indian Express on my experience as the Editor-in-Chief of Equinox.
